

FROM TOP LEFT A mellow but magnificent mood is rife at this bedroom at one of the dwellings in Marlecha Residence; The homes revel in balmy daylight that fuses with soft finishes and tones; The bedroom is a play of patterns and colours; The living room frames an airy canvas with views of the outdoors visible from inside FACING PAGE Marlecha Residence designed by Cadence Architects is vivacious and voluminous; L-R Narendra Pirgal, Smaran Mallesh, Vikram Rajashekar with their awe-inspiring creations for bathrooms.

TOUCHED WITH PERFECTION

Soft, elegant hues meet immaculate finishes and textures in Marlecha Residence, a multi-dwelling premises in Bengaluru concocted by Cadence Architects

Every home is an extension of its dweller. With numerous rooms and turns, our living spaces are a visual checklist of decor, furniture, layouts and most importantly innovation. Beyond its conventional meaning, innovation assumes a new form when details of textures and finishes take the centre stage at a Bengaluru residence dubbed Marlecha, envisioned by Smaran Mallesh, Narendra Pirgal and Vikram Rajashekar of Cadence Architects. Spanning a copious 3,014 sq ft area, the architect trio crafted three dwellings and a garden. They bonded over their common affinity towards clean lines, curated furniture and well-lit corners to craft an all-encompassing space where function seamlessly coalesces into polished textures, tones and finishes by ICA Italian Wood Finishes. Engulfing multi levels, the residence is dressed in the befitting ethos of design where good taste shows, conceptualised with muted-pastel tonality, stamped with textures and straight geometry that are parallelly highlighted with bespoke furniture.

Pivoting on characteristic elements of contemporary apartments, the architects accent the wall textures with ICA PU and metallic gold finishes to refine them into sharp lines. While the finishes bring with them versatility and a pursuit of experimentation, they also assure durability and lasting impressions through the interiors. Beams of sunlight piercing through the double heighted living room complement the den's subtle tones, while neutral shades set the mood for each room. The storage unit is carefully swathed with ICA PU colour and as one steps inside the master bedroom, the bed's headboard paints a pristine picture with ICA metallic gold. Refusing to stick to the prototype, the Cadence Architects decided to use an eclectic way of uniformly fusing the Marlecha Residence, where every big and little element speaks of the calibre of mindful function meeting the idea of fine living.

Website: www.icapidilite.com

TOUCHED WITH PERFECTION

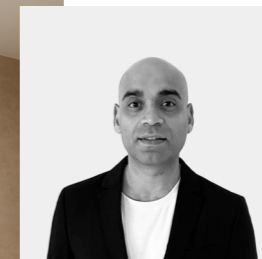

Soft, elegant hues meet immaculate finishes and textures in Marlecha Residence, a multi-dwelling premises in Bengaluru concocted by Cadence Architects

Every home is an extension of its dweller. With numerous rooms and turns, our living spaces are a visual checklist of decor, furniture, layouts and most importantly innovation. Beyond its conventional meaning, innovation assumes a new form when details of textures and finishes take the centre stage at a Bengaluru residence dubbed Marlecha, envisioned by Smaran Mallesh, Narendra Pargal and Vikram Rajashekar of Cadence Architects. Spanning a copious 3,014 sq ft area, the architect trio crafted three dwellings and a garden. They bonded over their common affinity towards clean lines, curated furniture and well-lit corners to craft an all-encompassing space where function seamlessly coalesces into polished textures, tones and finishes by ICA Italian Wood Finishes. Engulfing multi levels, the residence is dressed in the befitting ethos of design where good taste shows, conceptualised with muted-pastel tonality, stamped with textures and straight geometry that are parallelly highlighted with bespoke furniture.

Pivoting on characteristic elements of contemporary apartments, the architects accent the wall textures with ICA PU and metallic gold finishes to refine them into sharp lines. While the finishes bring with them versatility and a pursuit of experimentation, they also assure durability and lasting impressions through the interiors. Beams of sunlight piercing through the double heighted living room complement the den's subtle tones, while neutral shades set the mood for each room. The storage unit is carefully swathed with ICA PU colour and as one steps inside the master bedroom, the bed's headboard paints a pristine picture with ICA metallic gold. Refusing to stick to the prototype, the Cadence Architects decided to use an eclectic way of uniformly fusing the Marlecha Residence, where every big and little element speaks of the calibre of mindful function meeting the idea of fine living.

Website: www.icapidilite.com

FACING PAGE FROM TOP The living room frames an airy canvas with views of the outdoors visible from inside; Marlecha Residence designed by Cadence Architects is vivacious and voluminous; FROM TOP A mellow but magnificent mood is rife at this bedroom at one of the dwellings in Marlecha Residence; Smaran Mallesh; Vikram Rajashekar; Narendra Pargal; The homes revel in balmy daylight that fuses with soft finishes and tone